Needles & Syringes

Noseplugs

Noseplug Barb

NC NEEDLES: used primarily on thin skinned animals that are being "knocked out". Identified by the barb on the needle shank. Needle acts like a fish hook and will not come out in spite of animals activity.

Syringes

Marking Syringe Complete

For marking animals with colored ink using the Cap-Chur projectors as the delivery system. Marking syringes have a flat face noseplug, which does not pierce the skin of an animal. Upon impact with the animal, ink is squirted out of the exhaust ports in the syringe barrel walls, colouring the animals hide.

Syringe Barrel Only

The Cap-Chur syringe barrel is the holding tank or carrier of the injection while the syringe is in flight. The diameter of the syringe barrel must remain constant in order to fit through the projector. Therefore the length of the syringe barrel is proportional to how many ml's the barrel holds.

Tail Piece

TAIL PIECE: is the "feather" or guide for the Cap-Chur syringe. Helps keep the syringe "true" in flight.

KVS	Mfg.
039-441	Cap-Chur

Powerloads & Charges

Charges

Charges are very small explosive devices which "fire" on impact. When the syringe hits the target, the rubber plunger is pushed forward by the expanding gas caused by the Cap Chur charge explosion. The drug is then forced out through the needle and into the target.
